ONCE YOU ARE A MEMBER...

The IWGB provides:

- A wealth of experience organising and campaigning for decent working rights.
- A huge network of fellow supporters and campaigners, through which we create pressure for change.
- Full voting rights at the meetings where branch decisions are made.
- Free advice, representation and legal support with workplace issues.
- Full support from the central IWGB.

The IWGB has shown that determined organising can win concrete results:

- We organise some of the most precarious and underpaid people in the country, regardless of their employment status.
- Our Couriers and Logistics Branch has won the first payrises for London couriers in 15 years, despite them being classed as 'independent contractors'.
- We're at the forefront of the growing campaign against 'bogus self-employment', taking high-profile cases to court which may change the law.

WHAT WE DO

- We've built a campaigning structure (including social and traditional media, partnerships with student bodies and other unions, and support from MPs) dedicated to improving working conditions and protecting jobs.
- We don't tolerate victimisation of our members and campaign to protect them against job loss or detriment due to union activity.
- Through representation and campaigning we save jobs, end bullying and build confidence.
